a secondary display, which is a flat panel display, provided on said gaming machine at a location disposed apart from said main display and displaying video content capable of presenting a secondary game; and a player control mechanism on the chassis which, when actuated by a player, plays both the primary game displayed on the main display and the secondary game displayed on the secondary display, and wherein the outcome of the secondary game depends only on at least one of (i) the number of plays on the primary game and (ii) the outcome of those plays on the primary game, without depending upon a race against a timer or against players on other gaming machines.

The examiner is invited to telephone the undersigned attorney if any matters remain which could benefit from such a conversation.

Respectfully submitted,
